	what is art in relation to life. MoTA is a museum without physical space. Its programs are realised in different locations and contexts, both in physical and virtual space. MoTA organizes support actions for transitory art in the form of continuous events, exhibitions and educational programs both locally and internationally. MoTA's program is happening throughout the year in cities across Europe and beyond. It is conceived through an open and collaborative approach of international curators and artists and is enriched with in depth research of its yearly theme.
Other	MoTA's approach to artistic production is collaboration. With its methodology MoTA aims at over-coming social differences and exclusive modes of working. MoTA is an artistic-curatorial initiative dealing with themes of contemporary system errors and their consequences (such as virtuality, alienation, loss of identity, hyper-mobility, sexual freedom, media and social violence of all kinds) and strategies to produce ideas, actions and reactions to these errors. MoTA measures contact with public outside of artistic circles and discussion outside auto-reflexive philosophies of artworks. MoTA is in constant search for the new, the uncertain and the undefined. MoTA is also the first regular artist-in-residency program in Slovenia, with the purpose to give a living and working environment to foreign artists in Ljubljana. We understand our residency program as a platform for dialogue and collaborative work. Working closely with artists, researchers and curators, we aim to develop long-term and sustainable collaborations and engage with projects which mobilise art and other communities in order to produce new thoughts, actions and directions.
